

Evergreen Drops launches a free website audit and a fix-it toolkit for freelancers and small agencies

Dallas, Texas — Evergreen Drops has opened a free website audit anyone can run in under a minute, paired with a set of one-payment toolkits that turn each finding into a fix.

What it is

Evergreen Drops is a small studio publishing the templates, planners and toolkits its founders needed for their own client work. Everything is a one-time payment with a permanent licence — no subscriptions, no seat counts, no expiring access.

The free audit scans a public website and returns findings ordered by impact: page wording, search titles and descriptions, link previews, structure and trust signals. Each finding points to the exact template that fixes it.

Who it is for

Freelancers and small agencies who want a paid audit service they can sell this month. The Client Website Audit Toolkit supplies the 60-point method, the weighted score and the client-ready report; a ready-made proposal with scope, timeline and three price tiers ships alongside it. The Website Rescue Bundle covers delivery of the three fixes almost every audit flags.

Behind the client work sits the Creator OS: a twelve-database workspace covering clients, projects, deliverables, invoices, content and leads, already linked and seeded with examples.

Pricing

Free website audit: no cost, no account required. Website Rescue Bundle: $39. Client Website Audit Toolkit: $49. Creator OS workspace: one payment, licensed for client work.

Quote

"Most small business owners already know their site is underperforming. What they do not have is an ordered list of what to fix first, and a file that does the fixing. That is the whole product." — Evergreen Drops
